Special events highlight jubilee year

by Tom Liptak

The 1979-80 school year has begun, and with it, the continuation of the 75th Jubilee Anniversary celebration, featuring a host of academic symposiums, lectures, plays, concerts and art-related events.

The jubilee "year" actually began in January 1979 and will carry through to November 1980, a span of almost two years. The reason for that, according to Dr. Richard McDowell, the jubilee's director, is that the school was founded during a period that spanned more than one year.

A simple glance at the jubilee celebration's schedule of events, however, makes it plain that it would be quite difficult, if not impossible, to fit all the activities already staged, and those that are forthcoming, into a span of only one year.

The first major jubilee event this year will be a symposium entitled "The Citizen Soldier in Today's World," to be held Oct. 5 and 6. This conference will be composed of 11 panels and related bookings which will address issues such as the all-volunteer army, the reinstitution of the draft, women in the military, and ethics and modern warefare, to name only a few.

St. Michael's was founded in 1903-1904 by priests of the Society of St. Edmund. They had relocated in northern Vermont after leaving France in the early 1900s. The Edmundites were educators in France.

With about $1,300 in donations and some of their own funds they bought the land on which Founders Hall is built. The site included a two-story farm house and three barns.

The college began as "St. Michael's Institute," but became St. Michael's College in 1913. Only 33 students were enrolled for the first year the school was open, 1904-1905. At the time, St. Michael's was both a college and a prep school, although the prep school was dropped in 1931. By 1940 there were 250 students enrolled.

After the war, the number of students increased rapidly as veterans decided to attend college under their G.I. benefits. Several buildings from Fort Ethan Allen (now the north campus) were brought to the main campus to be used as offices, classrooms and dorms.

Many of these buildings have since been torn down.

In these years, St. Michael's also began a major building project. The four quad dorms were constructed in the 1950s and '60s. Alliot, Durick Library, Ross Sports Center and McCarthy Arts Center were all built in the 1960s and early '70s, gradually replacing the all-purpose Jemery Hall.

The nature of St. Michael's was changed even more in 1970 when the first 23 women were admitted to the college. Now the student body is almost half female.

Another jubilee event that is already in progress is The Einstein Centennial Exhibit sponsored by Dr. Edward Foley and the physics department. The exhibit will run through Sept. 21 in the McCarthy Arts Center.

Events scheduled through Homecoming Weedend, Oct. 19-21, include:

A discussion on American higher education entitled, "The Liberal Arts, in Crisis" sponsored by the humanities department; Sept. 20. A symposium entitled "Collective Bargaining and Dispute Settlement in the 1980s, sponsored by the business department, in which panels and related bookings will address themselves to increasing the participants' knowledge of the skills required in the collective bargaining process in both the public and private sectors; Oct. 12-13. A symposium entitled "Society and Secularization," sponsored by the sociology and religious studies departments; Oct. 17-18. The Hartnett lectures in which alumni in the fields of medicine and biological research will discuss related topics.

Tickets for 1980 Winter Olympics to go on sale soon at St. Mike's

You probably figured that, as usual, you'd be watching the winter olympic games, coming up early next year, on your lounge television or in some bar. Well, if you can beat the lines into Director of Student Activities Jennifer Cernosia's office, you may just be able to see some of the world's best athletes in person at Lake Placid, NY.

Thanks to the Student Life Office and the social committee, tickets for the 1980 Winter Olympics will go on sale to St. Michael's students and faculty on a first-come, first-served basis in the near future.

According to Cernosia, a package of two events including transportation from Burlington to Lake Placid will cost from $58.45 to $81.85. All the tickets will go on sale at one time, and Cernosia said she expected to sell all the tickets in a short time.

She said that a ticket limit would probably be set so that a few people would not be able to buy all the tickets. A St. Michael's College I.D. must be shown to purchase a package.

Inside: Class of 1983 photos

Welcome freshmen!

The Michaelman editors and the offices sponsoring this issue hope every member of the campus community will benefit from seeing "who's who" among new students at St. Michael's College this fall. We apologize for the quality of the photos. The color ID pictures do not reproduce well in black and white. We also regret missing many of the new students' photographs. Included with the freshmen/transfer ID photos are several recent and some not-so-recent views of campus life.

Apartment owners! Beware of landlords

by Neil Klotz

It's a slow, hot trudge up a long flight of stairs at the end of the first of what could be many days of apartment-hunting. At least the sign downstairs didn't say, "No animals or students." Head, feet and hand pounding in unison, you knock on what you've promised yourself will be the last manager's door of the day.

Then, suddenly, there it is: the ideal apartment. A veritable $100-a-month nirvana to your weary eyes. Out comes the lease, on goes the signature. The landlord-tennant sterility dance is finished before you even notice what legal and financial potency you've lost for the next 12 months. But after all, what are a few rights in return for no roaches? Perhaps only a little peace of mind or no heat until December or a couple hundred dollars or a surprise eviction.

If you've survived or avoided the black plague of mandatory dorms get ready for the trial by tenancy. With the possible exception of students purchasing an education, no class of consumers are more oppressed than tenants. In 25 states tenants must still pay rent even if their landlord doesn't provide them with a livable apartment. In 30 states a tenant can be evicted in retaliation for reporting a housing code violation.

For info about the specific dearth of rights in your state, see your local tenant's union (or start one: write the National Tenant's Organization, 1346 Connecticut Ave., Room 202, Washington, DC 20036). In the meantime, here are a few basics for your next lease-signing ritual.

1. The ball and chain lease. Contrary to popular belief, you do have the right to enjoy your apartment. Even with the current housing shortage in some college communities, you're signing a rental agreement, not a release for involuntary confinement. Nevertheless, you'll probably find clauses which prohibit parties, stereos, guests, pets, air conditioners, repainting, remodeling and other things people usually associate with a home. At some point the protection of your landlord's property nudges your right to privacy out of the picture.

Aside from signing away your lifestyle, you may also be asked to unwittingly give up other legal rights. Buried in the fine-print legal jargon may be clauses which give your landlord the right to enter your apartment at any time, to lock you out, or to seize your belongings and throw you out for late payment of rent. Under many brave new leases you also agree to pay your landlord's attorney's fees if he sues you or allow him to appoint an attorney on your behalf to plead guilty.

Here's some Orwellian gobblydygook I signed a few years ago, again from a standard lease: "This lease and the obligation of the tenant to pay rent hereunder . . . shall in nowise be affected, impaired or excused because the landlord is unable to supply or is delayed in supplying any service expressly or impliedly to be supplied or is unable or is delayed in making any repairs, additions, alterations or decorations . . ." Translation: you must pay rent even if the landlord doesn't provide heat, electricity, repairs or any other service he promised — quite a switch from the universal consumer axiom that you don't pay for what you don't receive.

2. The insecurity deposit. To prevent your security deposit from becoming your landlord's permanent bank deposit, try to include in your lease a clause stipulating when your money should be returned and requiring an itemized accounting of all deductions made.

So you only pay for your own holes in the wall after finals, make sure you and your landlord inspect the place before you move in and make a written inventory of all damage. If he refuses to take the tour, take along a disinterested witness, have your inventory notarized and give the landlord a copy. Although legally shaky, such tactics have a "don't tread on me" effect which can prove valuable.

For more clout try using the model inventory checklist and security deposit contract available free from the Sacramento County Consumer Protection Bureau, 816 H. St., Sacramento, CA 95841. The model agreement resulted from a survey of landlords in the Sacramento area which found that of an estimated $1.7 million in security deposits, over half the money was being withheld illegally. Confirming what many students know from experience, the bureau concluded that security deposits had become "an incredible ripoff."

3. The lease of least resistance. Although negotiating may be traumatic, you should try to change your lease before you sign it rather than rely on long and expensive legal action to vindicate you. In many places, local law hasn't yet caught up with basic human rights or the Constitution. Remember that any lease changes your landlord agrees to, as well as remodeling or repairs he's promised to make, should be written into the contract and initialed by both of you.

One factor in your favor: most landlords don't write their own lease, they just use whatever the local legal form supplier happens to carry. To take a dim view, this means they may know they're gypping you, but not exactly how. With some knowledge of your housing law, you (or better yet a group of tenants) can win back a few rights and survive until feudalism is officially declared dead.

One last tactic or symbolic protest, depending on your negotiating strength, is to present your landlord with your own lease. Try to let him sor through the winding language and fly-speck print. A gooc protenant model lease is available free from the Na tional Housing and Economic Development Law Project 2313 Warring St., Berkeley, CA 94704.

Bergeron's two-way mirror used for candid observation

by Darci Melcher

The Bergeron Educational Center, St. Michael's newest facility, has been completed and is now in full use. Some concern and curiosity, however, has been raised by the fact that the education center contains a two-way mirror which separates the walls of the classrooms.

The special mirror has been installed to be utilized as an educational aid, according to physical plant manager Don Larson. The psychology, journalism and education departments will be using this mirror for observation of student teachers, experiments and counseling purposes, he said. Other departments will also use the mirror for teacher and student observations.

Campus visitors could also benefit from this mirror, he went on. Tours may be given and the inside of the classroom may be seen without disrupting classes which are in session.

According to Larson, the mirror came about during the planning of the building. The price of the mirror was included in the price of the building.

Observation through the mirror takes place from the seminar room into the large classrooom. The room from which the observing takes place must be totally dark.

The Michaelman Publishing Association is looking for qualified persons to fill the following positions:

business manager
copy editor

Duties of the business manager include supervision of the business department of the paper. The position requires a considerable time commitment, leadership qualities and related academic and/or professional experience. The position also involves remuneration. The candidates for this post will be screened by the Michaelman Publishing Association's board of directors.

Those applying for the position of managing editor should enjoy newspaper layout, typography and design. Those applying for the position of copy editor should have a good command of the English language and an interest in editing and headline writing.

Details concerning application procedures, duties and qualifications are available in the Michaelman office, Alliot 210. Deadline for submitting applications is Wednesday, September 26.

Female security office at SMC does not find job routine or lonely

by Cori Fugere

The only female security officer at St. Michael's College finds the job neither routine nor lonely.

Ann Mudgett, who joined the force in February, said she can't let the job become routine because she would become "predictable." She said that if people know where she is at a specific time, they may be able to cause trouble elsewhere. "I have to be flexible to catch the trouble," the 20-year-old native of Essex said.

Even when she works the 10 p.m.-6 a.m. shift, Mudgett doesn't get lonely. "Someone is always up and another officer is on duty in the cruiser," she said.

While on her rounds of locking and checking buildings on the main campus, Mudgett said she never knows what is going to happen next. She said she may be called on an emergency at any time, and she never knows what she will encounter in the darkness of the locked buildings.

"Some students don't take me seriously at first," Mudgett said. "But once I 'write them up' (report them), they know I'm serious."

Comments such as, "If you weren't a girl, I'd tackle you," are not uncommon from male students, according to Mudgett. She said she dislikes being called a "girl" and would "tackle anyone who tried to tackle me."

Mudgett said she never gets nervous on the job. She exhibited her composure while walking through a men's dormitory when several student's teased her. "You just have to ignore them," she sighed.

The job is a "stepping stone" for Mudgett, who attended Mt. Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., for a year and a half. She hopes to pursue a career in law enforcement.

She finds working on the security force a more valuable learning experience than college because, "I learn something every time I work."

According to Virgil Schellhardt, chief of the St. Michael's security force, Mudgett is the second woman to join the force in about the last 10 years. The first female security officer on campus left in 1977 after two or three years of service, Schellhardt said.

Mudgett is an asset to the force, the chief said. He said he had wanted a woman on the force when he advertised for the position because a woman was needed to work with female students on campus.

"She has worked out very well," Schellhardt said, referring to Mudgett, who was the only woman to apply for the job. He said she has followed in the footsteps of the other woman officer who had done an "excellent job."

Mudgett said she was trained while on duty and was not required to undergo any fitness training, although she said she could "pass it easily."

When Mudgett works the night shift she is in charge of the women's dorm security. She must also fill in log sheets, recording "anything worth saying" about what happened during her tour of duty.

Mudgett said the night security is only required in women's dorms. "It's mostly for the security of the women inside," she said.

Mudgett uses a portable, two-way radio to contact other members of the force or the switchboard operator. Learning the codes, which shorten the messages, was part of her training.

Parties are not a problem at St. Michael's, according to Mudgett. "The problem is the destructiveness that occurs when people indulge too much," she said. She added that most people "party to have fun, but someone always comes along who gets destructive."

The 1977 graduate of the Essex Junction Educational Center studied political science at Mt. Holyoke College.

S.A. film series to be run differently than in past years

by Natalie-Marie Liss

This year's film series will run in a completely different manner than last year's, according to George Cholakis, who helped acquire several top-name showings. In the past, the S.A. Social Committee chose the films to be shown when time allowed during the year, Cholakis said.

There were no contracts with film leasing firms. Also, in the last five years no film series has broken even, he noted.

This year, Cholakis handled the booking for the series. Funds continue to come from the social committee and all projects are subject to committee approval. Contracts have been made with Films, Inc., Swank, and Paramount. The Paramount account has just recently been secured as an outlet for next year's series.

Films will be shown in the McCarthy Arts Center with possibly one or two viewings at the north campus in the Herrouet Theater. Cholakis said that the social committee is aiming at a ticket price of $1.

He hopes to make arrangements for a two-for-one deal on the Mel Brooks' festival. Concessions and the possibility of raffling off movie posters to advance ticket holders are being discussed, Cholakis said.

He began working on the project last spring and continued his efforts through the summer. Knowing some people in the market gave him the opportunity to "wheel and deal" in order to save on the list price of some films. The schedule was completed well in advance of the beginning of the semester.

Cholakis stressed the need to break even or make a profit with this year's film series. If all goes well, he said, better films can be lined up in the future. If this venture fails, funds for movies at St. Michael's may be cut back.
